INTRODUCTION

Editor’s Note
From time to time we receive letters of appreciation from members of our worldwide Jama’ats on what a useful service we are rendering in informing them of activities of the Centre and the global Jama’ats through the timely publication of our monthly HOPE Bulletin and special issues. Many of our readers have expressed great satisfaction on how we have handled requests for prayers of shifa, obituary news and production of memorial/Eid/Jalsa supplements.

As Editor of The HOPE Bulletin, I appreciate your encouraging mail, much of which is reproduced in “What Our Readers Say” for the information of our members at large and especially to energise the members of our HOPE Bulletin Team.

While I appreciate Br Nasir Ahmad’s letter (reproduced below in “What Our Readers Say”), I can only take partial credit on his conclusion, “…you are the only one doing this single-handedly.” The fact remains that from the inception of this project I have totally depended on the full support of Hazrat Ameer, Dr. Abdul Karim Saeed Pasha Sahib, the Central Jama’at, and the worldwide Jama’ats for regular submission of messages, announcements, reports on publications/Jama’at activities with photographs and letters of encouragement. Besides this, we have a cadre of writers whose names appear in each issue and who regularly submit articles for publication.

Our Team members are spread out in several countries and assist us in formatting, design and photo layouts, pdf conversion/compression of magazine material, and with any technical advice necessary for the timely and smooth production of the Bulletin’s monthly and special edition, photo/spécial occasion supplements etc. Alhamdollilah! The support and the contribution of information which we receive from Hazrat Ameer, the Centre and the members of the worldwide Jama’ats are the great blessings of Allah (swt), and we are thankful to Him for giving us the strength and hope to carry on this yeomen service for the Jama’at. Aameen.

PRAYER & HEALTH NEWS

Prayer activity at AAIL, UK as reported by Shahid Aziz, Secretary UK Jama‘at

The UK jamaat said the janaaza prayers of Kamran Karim’s mother, Haji Hassan Mahomed, and Nur Sardar’s wife last Friday. May Allah give them all a high place in heavens.

Dr M A Hamid, our honorary imam of the UK jamaat, has left for Pakistan. Dr Sahib suffered a stroke about three weeks ago. He was already suffering with eye sight problems and therefore decided to return to Pakistan to live with his sister and her family. It is a tribute to his dedication that as soon as he returned home, although very weak, he came to jummah prayers. Although he could not lead the prayers but he joined in and stayed to the end of proceedings. He has asked everyone to pray for him so that he can return to the UK and take up his duties as imam again.

[Members of our Prayer Circle are pleased to request for the complete shifa and full recovery of our ailing brother. May Allah (swt) have mercy on him and bless him soon with good health.]
Prayer blessings from Shabir Buksh, Secretary, AAIIL, New Zealand

May you have:
The wisdom of Luqmaan,
The sabr of Bilaal,
The generosity of Uthmaan,
The beauty of Yusuf,
The riches of Sulaiman, and
The character of Muhammad (sallahu allahi wasallam).
May the Noor of the Almighty flow from your home.
May Allah's mercy and special blessings be on you and your beloved family today and always.
Allahumma-inni-ala-Zikr-ika-wa Shuk-rika wa husni-ibad-atika.
[O our Lord! Verily I am steadfast in remembering, giving thanks and serving Thee handsomely.]

POEM

[Composed by Capt Abdus Salam Khan of California, USA in memory of Hadhrat Mirza Ghulam Ahmad of Qadian, the Promised Messiah, Mahdi and Mujjadad of the fourteenth century (Hijrah).]

A hundred years have gone
Since you left us, O Imaam.

We miss you and
Your blessed time.

Your smiling face,
Your presence sublime.

We miss you so,
O Ahmad’s Ghulam.

Alaikul salaat wa
Alaikul salaam!
Dr. Syed Muhammad Hussain Shah was born in 1878 in Lakki Marwat in District Bannu, North West Frontier Province of India (now Pakistan), where his father, Khan Bahadur Syed Alim Shah, was posted as Assistant Settlement Officer in the Civil Service of the British Government in India. The family actually hailed from the village Kala Chichi in Tehsil Shakargarh, District Gurdaspur in Punjab Province. Having passed his early years in Lakki Marwat, he could understand Pushto, the lingua franca of that area. He went to school in Scotch Mission High School, Sialkot where, amongst others, Allama Dr. Sir Muhammad Iqbal was his classmate with whom he had a very friendly relationship which lasted for a whole lifetime. After completion of his education at Sialkot he joined Medical College at Lahore and obtained his L.M.S Degree in 1899. Unfortunately, his father passed away the same day on which the result of the Medical Degree Examination was announced. After graduation, he was employed in the Department of Health Services of the Government of Punjab.

Coming to the fold of Ahmadiyyat

In 1901-02, when Dr. Syed Muhammad Shah was posted in Gurdaspur on special duty for the treatment of plague patients, Syed Amir Shah, a cousin of his, who was an Assistant Tehsildar and already an Ahmadi, took him to Qadian to see the Promised Messiah. Shah Sahib, as Dr. Syed Muhammad Shah was commonly known amongst his colleagues, friends and family members, narrates the events of his taking bai’at at the hands of the Promised Messiah in these words:
“Before my visit to Qadian for the first time I was thinking of it as a gaddi, like the gaddies of other pirs, but when I arrived there I had a problem in recognizing Hadhrat Sahib as he was sitting amidst other people, so I had to enquire as to who amongst them was the Promised Messiah. This unassuming behaviour of the Promised Messiah registered a deep impression on my mind. A person amongst the gathering asked the Promised Messiah to request his followers to grow beards as most of his followers were clean-shaven. In reply, Hadhrat Mirza Sahib said that he was more concerned about the hearts of the people, and once those are reformed the beards will automatically follow. After returning from Qadian, I kept thinking that such a person cannot be a fake and I decided that I should join his Jama’at. So I again went to Qadian and took bai’at at the hands of the Promised Messiah.”

Some time later after that Shah Sahib was permanently posted at Lahore. In those days, he, along with Khwaja Kamaluddin Sahib, Dr. Mirza Yaqub Beg Sahib and Sheikh Rahmatullah Sahib, used to go to Qadian every weekend to spend time in the company of the Promised Messiah.

Shah Sahib was a devout and pious Muslim and a sincere devotee of the Promised Messiah. From the day he joined Ahmadiyyat he used to give 1/3 of his income to the Ahmadiyya causes and spent money generously in the cause of religion and other good causes. As a regard of his sincere devotion and sacrifices in the cause of Islam, the Promised Messiah held him in great esteem, and whenever he visited him, the Promised Messiah would stand up in respect to receive him. When the Sadr Ahmadiyya Anjuman was formed in 1905, the Promised Messiah nominated him as a member of the Motamadeen, the position which he held until the split in 1914. Thereafter, he became one of the five founding members of the Ahmadiyya Anjuman Ishaat-i-Islam Lahore.

A renowned but God-fearing physician of his time

Dr. Syed Muhammad Hussain Shah was a renowned physician of his time. Doctors in the employment of Government were allowed to carry on their private practice after their duty hours and during weekends. During the remaining lifetime of Promised Messiah, both Dr. Mirza Yaqub Beg Sahib and Shah Sahib used to visit Qadian every weekend at a great monetary sacrifice just to be in the company of the Promised Messiah. Even then Allah amply rewarded them and both of them had a lucrative private practice earning them thousands of rupees, a large sum in those days. How renowned a physician Shah Sahib was, is evident from the fact that Dr. Sir Muhammad Iqbal, in his letters to Bilgrami (a well-known poet), invited him to come to Lahore so that he could take him to Dr. Syed Muhammad Hussain Shah for treatment. As a physician, Shah Sahib did not insist upon receiving fees from his patients. Whatever someone chose to pay would be quietly put in his pocket. Many of his patients were poor, and he would see them without any fees and also give them money from his own pocket to purchase medicines and food. He was a saintly person, never hungry for money; instead, he used to spend generously for multifarious humanitarian causes.

A compassionate person

Dr. Muhammad Hussain Shah was a very compassionate human being who cared not only about the needs of others but also helped them in the matters of their welfare. When he purchased a big chunk of land on Ferozepur Road, which he later developed and named Muslim Town, he built his house on it and also built homes for his near needy relatives who could not afford to build a house for themselves. He built a house for his dispenser, Shukar Deen, and for his other personal servants. He also built a house for Pandit Qadir Baksh, a Brahmin convert to Islam. He transferred the ownership of these buildings in their names. He not only brought them to live near him but also paid for their education, arranged and bore the expenses for their marriages and even purchased agricultural lands for them in Khanpur District and Bhopal. Amongst others, the parents of Begum Zeenat Fida Hussain and Colonel Amjad Hussain, father of Syed Mushahid Hussain and Syed Mutahir Hussain, are examples of such beneficiaries. This was not limited to his near relatives. He helped many other Muslim students, without any distinction of being an Ahmadi or not, in obtaining higher education. The late Hameed Nizami, who after independence became the Publisher-Editor... of Pakistan’s well-known daily newspaper Nawa-i-Waqt, was an example of one such beneficiary. Mr. Nizami was treated like a family member and he kept this relationship with Shah Sahib’s offspring until his death.

Dr. Muhammad Hussain Shah was also a big supporter and benefactor of the Anjuman Himayt-ul-Islam and was a member of its Board of Directors for a long time. This Anjuman was created for the promotion of education of Muslims of the Punjab Province, and established and ran the Islamia College, Lahore and many other high schools for Muslim boys and girls.

In 1918, the Government approached the Central Anjuman (AAIIL) with the offer that it was willing to release some revolutionary Muslim youths who were detained for their enthusiastic anti-Government activities provided the Anjuman agreed to reform them and channel their energies towards the propagation of Islam work. As a result of this move, Muhammad Iqbal Shadai and Syed Mustafa Kamil were handed over to the AAIIL, Lahore. Shah Sahib took Iqbal Shadai into his personal care and he lived in his house in Ahmadiyya Buildings for a couple of years. Thereafter, in 1920, when the Hijrat Movement started, he migrated from India and after obtaining a doctorate degree from a European University became well known in the Muslim world as Dr. Iqbal Shadai. Dr. Shadai held Shah Sahib in high respect and always remembered him respectfully as one remembers his own father.

Murree Hills was the summer capital of the Government of Punjab. In those days, non-government civilians were not allowed to visit Murree. When Shah Sahib first came to Murree in the summer of 1924 he learnt about the poverty of the common man residing in villages and gali jats surrounding Murree. These people were living in a constant state of starvation, and tuberculosis (TB) was rampant in the area. Most of the land, being hilly or with thick forests, was not cultivatable, hence these people had no proper means of income. The population of the area was predominantly Muslim. Shah Sahib not only rendered them free medical treatment but also paid for the cost of medicines in addition to giving them money for nutritious food to help them recover. He was so moved by the miserable economic conditions of those people that he hosted a meeting of land owners of the area along with the officials of the Agriculture Department, the Revenue Department and the Department of Cooperative Societies and urged upon them the need of advancing money to these poor landowners to purchase seedlings and plant fruit trees on the slopes of their land to bring them some income. Many of the fruit gardens of that area are the remnants of Shah Sahib’s efforts in that regard.

Furthermore, many of Shah Sahib’s patients were suffering from TB. During the summer months he used to send them to an infirmary in Simla. Many of them would return to him in Murree complaining that the doctors in Simla, the majority of whom were Hindus, did not pay proper attention to the treatment of Muslim patients till payment of gratification. Since many patients in the area surrounding Murree too were also suffering from TB, therefore Shah Sahib felt the need to build a clinic in that area. He talked to government officials as well as landlords of the area but to no avail. Ultimately, he decided to go it alone. In 1928, he purchased 25 acres of land in Samli near Murree to build a clinic. When the transfer documents for the land were yet to be signed, his son, B.H. Syed, who was a final year medical student, advised him to rethink the decision. B.H. Syed (who later became Colonel Dr. B.H. Syed and retired as Director of Health Services, Government of West Pakistan) asked his father to consider that since he was about to retire from service in two years and he, B.H. Syed, was still in medical school, where the money will come from to finance such an expensive project. He went on to say that people establish non-profit corporations or trusts for such undertakings and his father was planning to go into this project alone and finally he pleaded that his father rethink rationally as the re was still time to walk out of the deal. In reply, Dr. Syed Muhammad Hussain Shah said, “My son, I too have a ‘trust,’ a very reliable ‘trust.’ When the son enquired as to which and where was that trust, Shah Sahib responded, “Muhammad Hussain has a trust with Allah, and whenever I decide to undertake a project for the betterment of mankind I just do it with my best intention, then Allah Himself provides the means because betterment of mankind is Allah’s Own job which He takes care of.” So the deed was signed. A clinic was established with Shah Sahib’s own income from his medical practice and after independence it was handed over to the Government of Pakistan by Shah Sahib’s descendents and today it is the largest hospital in Pakistan where more than 350 beds are available for the treatment of TB patients. Shah Sahib was right. Allah is taking care of it.
He excelled in hospitality
Dr. Syed Muhammad Hussain Shah was a very hospitable person. During his last visit to Lahore in 1908, the Promised Messiah, along with his family, was staying in Shah Sahib’s house in Ahmadiyya Buildings. A large number of people were coming to visit him and everyone was served food and refreshments. During this period Shah Sahib’s wife kept busy the whole day in getting food prepared for guests and visitors so much so that the Promised Messiah said, “Our stay has caused much inconvenience to our daughter” (referring to Shah Sahib’s wife).

After the split in 1914 when AAI Lahore was formed, Maulana Muhammad Ali was staying in a room in the house of Shah Sahib until a house was built for him adjacent to the Ahmadiyya Buildings Masjid. Maulana Muhammad Ali moved into this house and brought his family there.

Maulana Abdul Haque Vidyarthi, along with his family, was living in another room on the ground floor of Shah Sahib’s house. Another room on the ground floor was being used as the Anjuman’s office as there was no office building yet. Another large room on the ground floor was being used as guest house where beds for 25-30 persons were provided and Shah Sahib had detailed a personal servant whose duty it was to look after the needs of guests. The food for guests was supplied and prepared from Shah Sahib’s home.

In the beginning there used to be 50-60 persons for Maghrib prayer who all dined together in the Masjid afterwards. This food too was prepared in Shah Sahib’s home, after which Isha prayers were offered and then people would disperse to their homes. Later, food would be prepared in turn in the homes of Maulana Muhammad Ali, Dr. Mirza Yaqub Beg and Khwaja Kamaluddin.

Even when Dr. Muhammad Shah had moved to his new home in Muslim Town there still used to be 40-50 persons joining him in partaking food at dinner time. Taking dinner in the company of his friends, family members and his other relatives or even those whom he was helping financially or otherwise had become second nature with him. This was a real sense of community based on the teachings of Islam.

Shah Sahib’s great passion for tableegh
Dr. Syed Muhammad Hussain Shah had a deep passion for tableegh of Islam. While visiting a patient, if some religious matter was asked by the patient or his family, Shah Sahib used to spend hours disseminating the true teachings of Islam, quite forgetting that he still had to visit and see other patients. During his service he used to preach Islam to his European bosses and he was much respected by them for his high moral character and knowledge in the field of religion. Many of his near relatives became members of the Jama’at as a result of his tableegh.

When the decision was taken in 1910 during Maulana Nuruddin’s time to open a mission in England, Dr. Syed Muhammad Hussain Shah offered his services for the mission and got approval for an extended period of leave from his job in spite of the fact that his family and close relatives were opposed to the idea. However, on other grounds, Khwaja Kamaluddin was allowed to go to England where he established a mission in London, which was later moved to Woking.

When Dr Ambedkar, a political leader of the Untouchables (low caste Hindus) announced that due to the inhuman treatment of the untouchables at the hands of Hindus, the untouchables had no option but to embrace other religions where they may be treated more humanly, Christian missionaries gained a lot of converts. Shah Sahib got a month’s leave from his job and, taking Maulana Sadruddin along, went to Bombay for tableegh-e-Islam amongst the untouchables.

Some pagan tribes in the Punjab Province who were descendents of the original population of India and who had taken refuge in thick forests at the time of the arrival of the Aryans in India were living in various districts of the Punjab after these forests had been cleared for the making of irrigation canals during British Rule. They were called Sansi and were not allowed to live in settled areas. Many of them lived in Montgomery District (now Sahiwal...
District). Shah Sahib initiated a \textit{tableegh-e-Islam} mission in that area and simultaneously he took up the matter with the District and Provincial Administration for recognition of their fundamental human rights, especially their right to live in settled areas rather than moving around as nomads. His efforts bore fruit and a large number of them converted to Islam. Maulvi Shafqat Rasul, who was later a missionary of Islam in Fiji, was a son of the headman of this tribe who had embraced Islam.

His services for the cause of Ahmadiyyat

Dr. Syed Muhammad Shah regularly sent one third of his monthly income to Qadian until 1914, and thereafter to AAII Lahore. In addition to that, he generously donated funds on appeals for various projects of the Anjuman:

(a) In 1908, at considerable cost, he completed the expansion of Masjid-e-Nur. He also purchased a plot of land on which he built a house in Qadian, which he later gave to the Promised Messiah’s family as a gift.

(b) In 1910, he purchased land in the Ahmadiyya Buildings compound and got the Masjid built on it. Further, he paid the cost of building a gallery attached to the Masjid for the ladies on land which was donated by Khwaja Kamal-ud-din.

(c) In 1914, when Maulana Muhammad Ali came from Qadian, he lived for a few months in a room on the first floor of Dr. Sahib’s home. This was the same room in which the Promised Messiah had stayed during his last visit to Lahore in May 1908 and in which he breathed his last. Shah Sahib built a house adjacent to the Masjid for the Ameer’s residence and Hadhrat Ameer Maulana Muhammad Ali moved into it and brought his family to live with him. He resided in that home for twenty years until he moved to his own home, which he built in Muslim Town. Thereafter Maulana Sadruddin resided in that house until he passed away. Shah Sahib transferred ownership of the house to AAII Lahore as a gift in 1921.

(d) In 1914, the AAII Lahore was founded and Shah Sahib was made its Financial Secretary. There were not many members at that stage and it meant starting from scratch. Expenses for all the projects of the Anjuman at that time were mostly borne through the financial sacrifices of Shah Sahib, Dr. Mirza Yaqub Beg and Sheikh Rahmatullah.

(e) Shah Sahib obtained a large parcel of land for \textit{abadkari} (making cultivable) in Khanpur District in Bahawalpur State. When, after clearing the forest it was made cultivable, the State granted rights of permanent ownership. At that stage Shah Sahib not only got share of ownership for his near relatives but also created a Waqf (Trust) of 25 acres in favour of AAII Lahore, wherefrom the income was received annually by the Central Anjuman.

(f) When Shah Sahib purchased quite a large section of land by the Canal Bank on Ferozpur Road, Lahore to be developed into a Muslim town, he reserved 10 acres in it to be called Ahmadiyya Basti, wherein land was offered to the members of \textit{the Jama’at} at a nominal price. Only Maulana Muhammad Ali, Maulana Abdul Haque Vidyarthi, Maulvi Murtaza Khan, Master Faqruullah, Deputy Muhammad Sadiq and Ch. Rahmat Khan Bahadur built their homes there, whereas many others sold out the land at a higher price.

(g) Shah Sahib also built a masjid in Muslim Town, which was known as Masjid-e-Aisha, in memory of his mother. He also built a well for water supply, \textit{wudu} etc., and a house for the muezzin, and also created a waqf of an acre of land in favour of the AAII Lahore wherein the Anjuman later built the Darul Qur’an School for Missionary Training.

(h) Shah Sahib donated a house and three acres of land to the AAII Lahore in Samli Sanatorium as a gift which the Central Anjuman, after Independence, gave as a gift to the Government for expansion of the sanatorium.
In 1938, Shah Sahib transferred the ownership of his two houses in Ahmadiyya Buildings to the AAII Lahore as a gift. On one of these the Anjuman later built the Promised Messiah Memorial Hall while the other was being used by Maulana Ahmad Yar as his residence.

Shah Sahib made a waqf of one and a quarter acres of land in favour of the Anjuman in the Shah Jamal area, Lahore in the name of his wife, Daulat Bibi. This lot was later sold for 48 thousand rupees and the money was used in the construction of the Promised Messiah Memorial Hall.

Shah Sahib donated sizeable amounts towards the construction of the building of the Muslim High School in Ahmadiyya Buildings, the construction of the Berlin Mosque, and for the purchase of 1000 acres of agricultural land in Chak No. 6 near Okara (most of this land was taken away by the Government under Land Reforms in 1966). His wife had donated her 40- tola golden bangles towards the construction of the minarets of the Berlin Mosque.

In 1937, Shah Sahib obtained 15000 acres of land in Bhopal State under the Abadkari Scheme. Out of this he got 1000 acres for himself and his near relatives and 500 acres for AAII Lahore. This required clearing of forest trees. Some work was started on it but neither the Anjuman nor Shah Sahib’s descendents pursued it after his death in 1939. This land was taken over by the Government of India in 1961.

From the above it is evident that Dr. Syed Muhammad Hussain Shah most probably was one of the main donors of the Anjuman. Allah gave him lots of money and he spent it in the way of Allah quite generously, never saving for the future. Out of his large income he used to give a few hundred rupees to his mother for household expenses. After the passing away of his mother he gave this money to his wife and after her passing away, to his daughter. He never asked them for accounts when they told him that the money was finished; instead he would give them more. The rest of the money he used to give to Pandit Qadir Baksh, who served as his banker. Pandit Sahib used to spend money according to the instruction of Shah Sahib and when he ran out he would inform Shah Sahib who would give him more. Shah Sahib had so much trust in Pandit Qadir Baksh that he never asked for accounts from him. Shah Sahib did not keep more than five rupees in his own pocket.

Ahmadiyya brotherhood

A few days before his death on an Eid occasion, when all his family members and near relatives had assembled for celebrating Eid, Shah Sahib addressed them in these words:

> “When someone passes away he leaves wealth and property for his descendents, but I am leaving another form of wealth for you and that is our brotherhood which the Promised Messiah made for us.”

He went on to say:

> “You may have noticed that whenever I felt sick the members of the Ahmadiyya brotherhood came from far and near to enquire about my health. This religious brotherhood is far superior to other kinds of brotherhood. Such sincere, loving and caring brotherhood you will not find elsewhere. Keep this brotherhood intact. This is a very useful thing.”

Shah Sahib himself was an embodiment of the tradition of this brotherhood. He would always walk an extra mile to fulfil the calls of this brotherhood. Dr. Saeed Ahmad Khan recalled an instance to illustrate this character of Shah Sahib, and thus he wrote:

> “I was posted at Peshawar in July of 1929. While treating a rabies patient, her sputum fell in my eyes. It necessitated that I receive preventive inoculation. Such preventive inoculations were administered at Murree. I sent a telegram to Shah Sahib and left for Murree. When I arrived at the Murree bus stop I was surprised to see..."
that Shah Sahib, along with some family members, was waiting for me there. His house was at a distance of about three to four miles from the bus stop. It was located on a hilltop and the whole distance had to be walked up the slope. I was the age of his children and could not believe that he would be so caring as to undertake all the trouble of coming personally to receive me. This left a deep impression of his high moral character on my mind. I stayed in his home for fourteen days and had a chance to see in person Shah Sahib’s virtuous family life, his high moral character, his observances of religious duties, his hospitality and his emotions of brotherhood and sympathy. In fact, Shah Sahib was a very great human being and his pious life was a model for others. Those fourteen days which I passed in the company of that pious person, I will never forget in my life. This is a great and invaluable experience of my life.”

His interest in other movements for the betterment and rights of Muslims
Shah Sahib used to take an interest in the political and social movements of Muslims in India. He was a supporter of the Freedom Movement. When the movement for using locally produced goods was launched by Mr. Ghandi, Shah Sahib became its quiet advocate by wearing locally manufactured clothes and also having his family do the same. He was actively engaged in the Anjuman an-e-Himayat-e-Islam and was one of its major donors. His view about the Freedom Movement was that Ahmadis had to be sympathetic to it but should not actively participate in it. Our job was tableegh-e-Islam, and we should let other Muslims actively participate in politics.

After 1930, when the Muslim League emerged as an active political party, all of Shah Sahib’s sympathies were with that party. Shah Sahib financed Mr. Hameed Nizami and Colonel Amjad Hussain Syed (who were students in those days) for publishing a two-page daily newspaper entitled Hurriyat. In this newspaper, and through Mr. Hameed Nizami and Colonel Amjad Hussain Syed, Shah Sahib disseminated the Muslim League political viewpoint.

Return to Allah
Shah Sahib had been suffering from high blood pressure for some years. On 26 April, 1939, during Tahajjud prayers when Shah Sahib was in the state of prostration, he became unconscious. When he did not rise from prostration after a long time, his wife checked on him, and finding him unconscious, sent for Dr. Basharat Ahmad who was living in Muslim Town. He tried his best but Shah Sahib did not regain consciousness and ultimately at quarter past eight on the same evening he breathed his last. Inna lilah-e- wa inna ilaih-i-raji’on.

The next day a very large number of people, both Ahmadis and non-Ahmadis, joined in his funeral prayer, which was led by Maulana Muhammad Ali.

Sultan Omar Ali Saifuddin Mosque

Amazing in appearance, but too beautiful to be true, the Omar Ali Saifuddin Mosque is Brunei's proudest architectural achievement. It sits on an artificial lagoon near the Brunei River in Kampong Ayer, which is, appropriately enough, known as a "water village." A structure in the water that resembles a ship was at one time used for official state ceremonies. The mosque is the largest in the Far East, and considered among the most beautiful in the world. It reaches a height of 52 meters and is topped with a gold dome supported by walls of Italian marble, which also forms the mosque's columns, arches, and towers. The stained glass was handmade in England and the carpets are Saudi Arabian.
Sheikh Zayad Mosque Abu Dhabi

Nur Jahan Alam brought this beautiful mosque to our attention with her comments below:

“I thought you and others might like to see another mosque - this one was finished not so long ago in Abu Dhabi - the Sheik Zayed Mosque. The mosque was the Sheik’s last project on earth. A week before his death, five years from the commencement date, Sheik Zayed went to the mosque to oversee its progress. He told the workers that he would not be able to see it finished in his lifetime but told his people where to bury him on his demise. He was buried outside the front door of the mosque and is entombed in white seam less and vein less marble. It is really a sight to behold. I have been there!”

She acknowledged our appreciation of this beautiful mosque, as follows:

“I am glad that you liked it - it is absolutely beautiful. I know that Allah is everywhere, but when you enter places like these, you cannot fail to appreciate the magnificence of God and of course be grateful to Him for creating beauty in this world and for creating us and giving us the ability to appreciate Him and His works. People may say that we should be thankful to the architects, but who is a greater architect than Allah? He just gives us the inspiration to make places like these. Can you imagine how much more beautiful heaven must be - it defies my imagination!”

[Due to the bulk size of the material, photograph and information on this Mosque will be sent separately]
